Arizona Urban Health Needs Assessment

Preface

It is a pleasure to play a part in the production of this, the second volume in a series of publications concerning primary care in Arizona. The first volume, an assessment of rural health needs, has been extremely well received and used as a resource in the identification of areas of high need in rural Arizona. We fully anticipate that this second volume will be equally useful in identifying needy urban areas.

Both of these projects have been sponsored by the Region IX Office of the U.S. Public Health Service and the Bureau of Health Care Delivery and Assistance in the Health Resources and Services Administration of the U.S.P.H.S.

In recent years, the Rural Health Office has become one of several players involved in participating in a primary care strategy for Arizona. The Rural Health Office, the Arizona Department of Health Services, and the Arizona Association of Community Health Centers coordinate their efforts through a cooperative agreement between the State and Federal governments. A Primary Care

Working Partnership composed of these three parties and other Federal and State Supported programs, as well as private sector representatives, meets on a bi-monthly basis.

Marianne Remy is primarily responsible for the contents of the current volume and should be recognized accordingly. Ms. Remy has taken leadership in developing computer mapping techniques which have brought the Rural Health Office to a new level of sophistication in its capacity to illustrate demographic data. It is through this internal capability that we are able to bring you a quality document at reasonable cost. We hope that you will find it useful for many years.

Acknowledgements

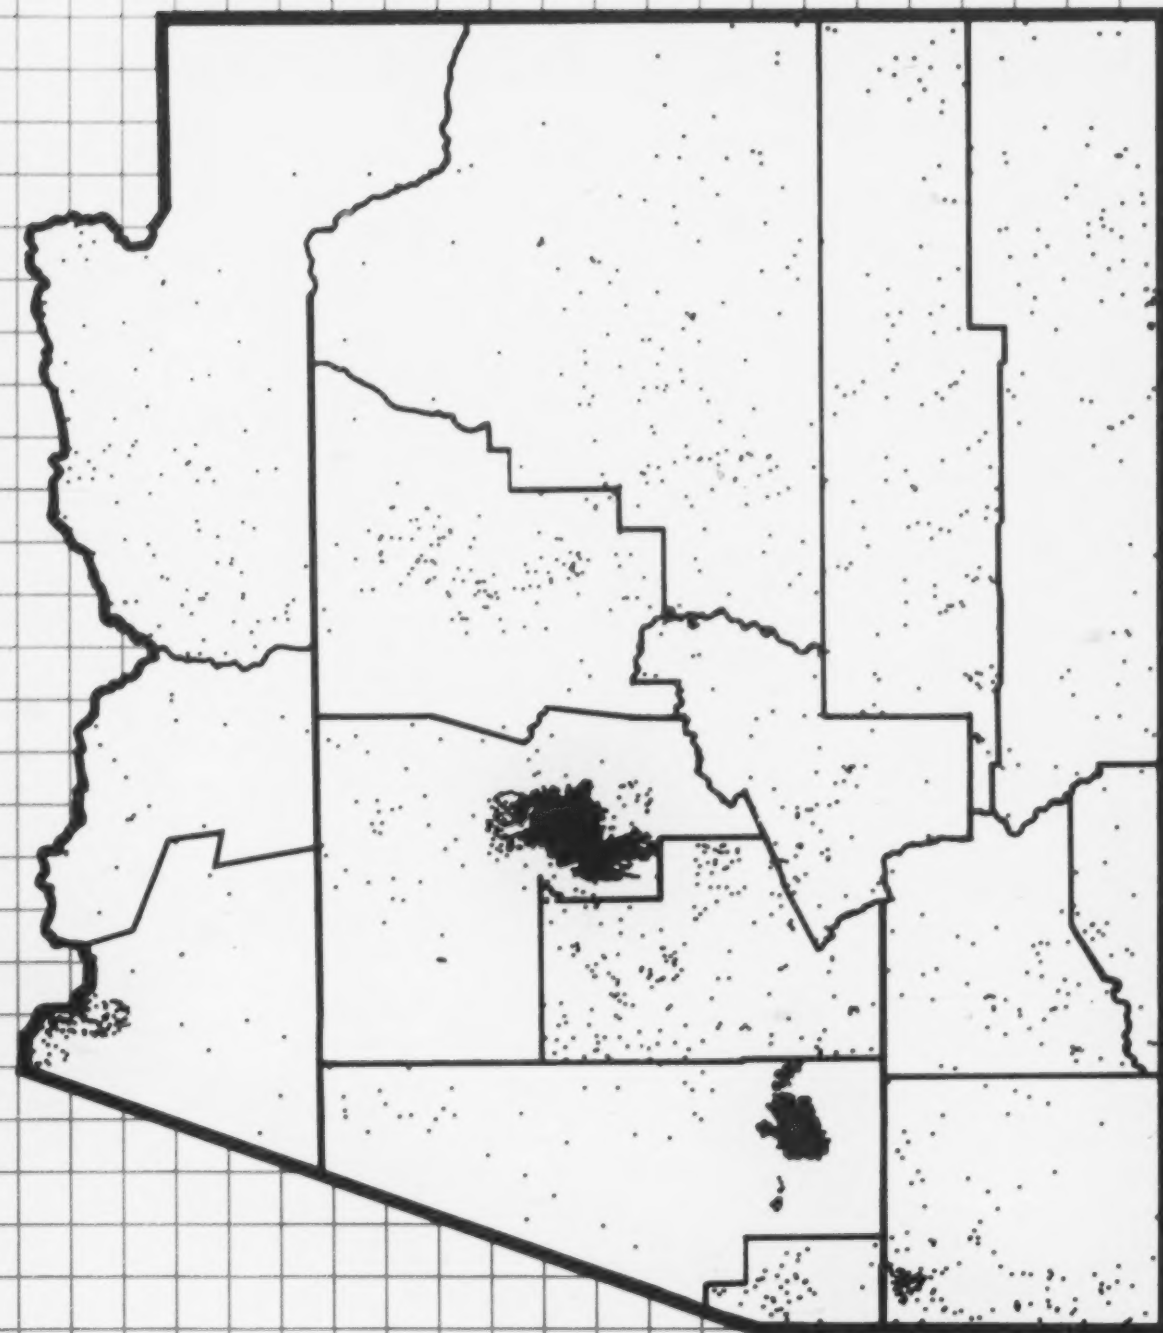

The author gratefully acknowledges substantial contributions by Melanie deBoer and Paul LaBrec, both of the University of Arizona Rural Health Office. Their participation in data retrieval and management was a central component of this study. Antonio Estrada, also of the Rural Health Office, provided valuable data-related assistance as needed, as did Linda Drew of the University of Arizona Computer Center.

Staff members of the Rural Health Office who assisted with the production of the report included Cheryl Alcalá and Lynda Bergsma. The design, layout, and typography for this report was done by the Division of Biomedical Communications, Arizona Health Sciences Center.

Special appreciation is extended to the Arizona Primary Care Working Partnership, without which this report would not have been possible. The Arizona Primary Care Working Partnership, chaired by Stan Kleiner of the Arizona Department of Health Services, is a statewide, multi-agency consortium which has the responsibility of planning and implementing primary care activities in the state. This group facilitated the development of this assessment and will base future activities on these results.

Research for this report was supported through a cooperative agreement between the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service and the Arizona Department of Health Services, the Arizona Association of Community Health Centers, and the University of Arizona Rural Health Office.

Introduction

Introduction

The Arizona Urban Health Needs Assessment, in combination with the Arizona Rural Health Needs Assessment (August, 1987), completes a statewide assessment of need for primary health care services in Arizona. The rural assessment presents an analysis of the thirteen counties in the state, excluding Pima and Maricopa counties. These two counties are designated Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) and are analyzed separately in this urban needs assessment.

The unique feature of both the rural and urban assessments is that health need indicators are evaluated by small geographic areas. The purpose of this report, as with its rural predecessor, is to identify geographic areas which appear to be in need of primary health care services. This format becomes a useful tool for those concerned with health services planning at the community level.

Methodology

The small area units which are used as the basis of analysis for this report are census tracts. Zip code areas, utilized for the rural assessment, were not used for the urban assessment because vital record data within metropolitan Phoenix and Tucson are not differentiated by zip code. Data used as the need indicators are readily available by individual census tracts.

In Phoenix and Tucson, census tracts are quite small so census tract groupings were made in order to allow for adequate data to make meaningful comparisons. In the case of larger or more rural census tracts, community names are assigned and the metropolitan census tract groupings are given descriptive names. The boundaries of each census tract area and the actual census tract number(s) are detailed in Appendix B.

Health, sociodemographic, and health care provider indicators complete an array of data that are used to determine need for health care services in each small area. Individual indicators, as described below, are evaluated for each small area; the individual data values are displayed in Appendix A. These data are aggregated into thirds, based on the total data values within a given county. In addition, these individual variables are combined into an overall ranking of need for health care services.

Three health indicators are used: age-adjusted death rates, percent of low birthweight births, and percent of births to teens. All of these are annualized rates derived from Arizona Vital Records for the time period 1981-1985. The population denominator used for the age-adjusted death rates is the 1985 population because mid-point (1983) population estimates are not available by small area.

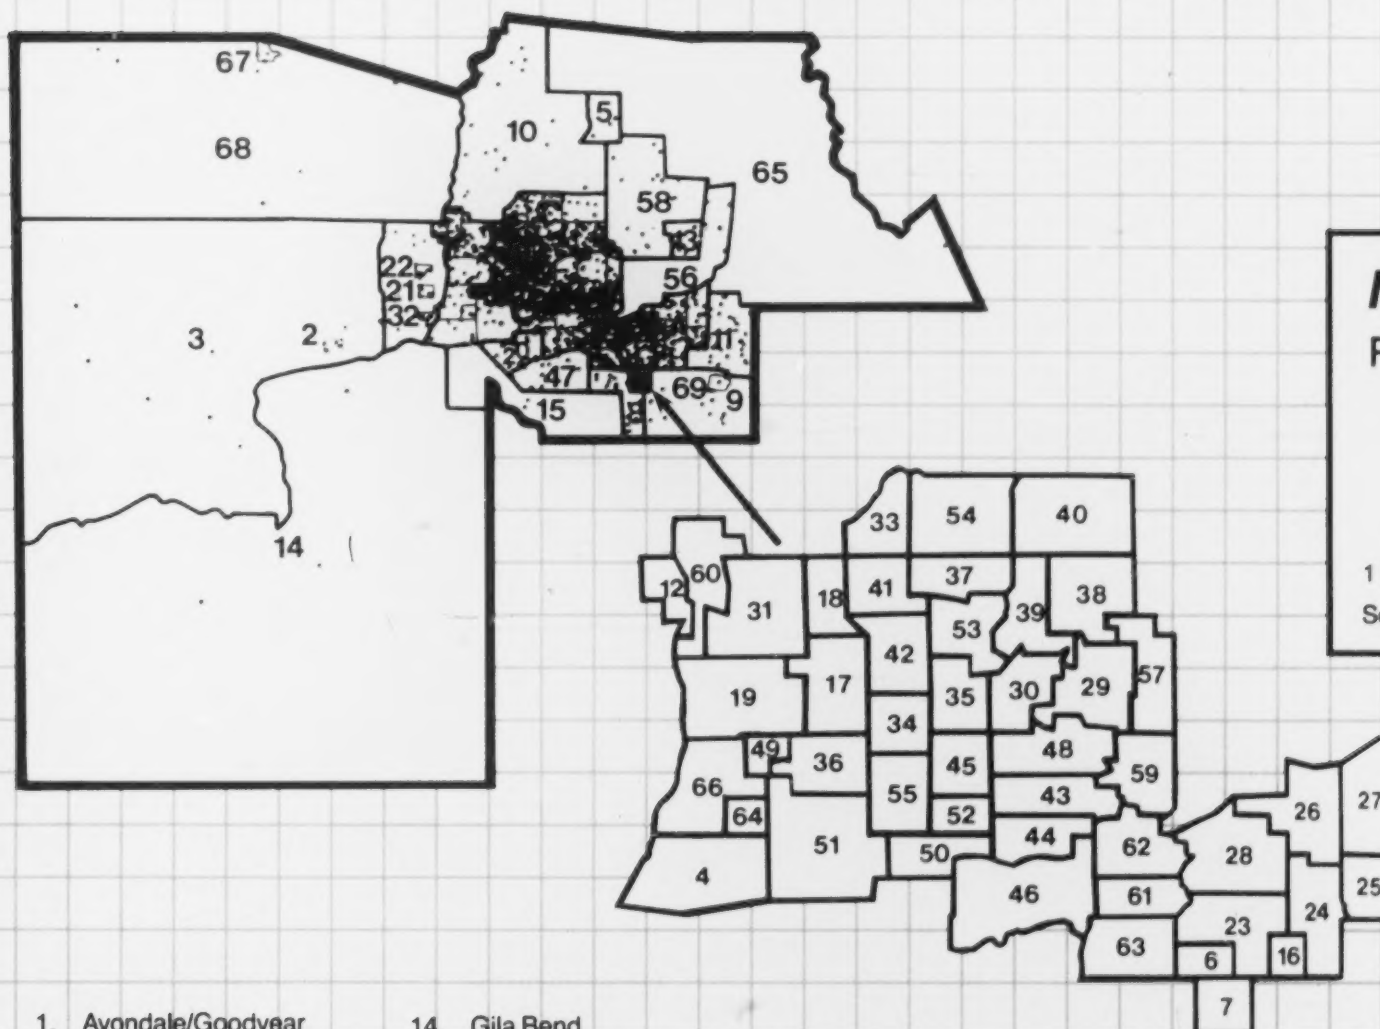

Three sociodemographic indicators are used: percent of population below poverty level; percent of population who are 65 years of age and older; and percent of population who are Black, Indian, or Hispanic. The source of these data for Maricopa County is data from the 1985 special census sponsored by the Maricopa County Council of Governments. The source of these data for Pima County is a combination of 1985 population projections from the Pima County Association of Governments and the 1980 census. In this case, the proportions of population falling into each of the categories listed above, as determined by the 1980 census, were applied to the updated, 1985 projected population numbers.

Two health provider indicators are used: primary care physician to population ratios, which includes MD's and DO's; and mid-level provider to population ratios, which includes Nurse Practitioners and Physician's Assistants. The source of these data is the Arizona Rural Health Provider Atlas (1987) by Rena Gordon of the University of Arizona Rural Health Office. The population denominators used for these ratios are from 1985, since more updated population numbers are not available by small area.

Based on these sets of indicators, an overall rank of need for health care services is developed for each small area in each of the two counties. The aggregates are for each county and the comparative value for each variable in each small area is weighted in comparison to all other small areas in that county. Each data variable is given equal weight in this process. (The race/ethnicity variables are combined into one, although it is presented and displayed separately by Black, Indian, and Hispanic.) The result is a rank of need for health care services by small area within Maricopa and Pima Counties.

Conclusion

The Arizona Urban Health Needs Assessment presents an objective, comparative analysis of need for health care services in Maricopa and Pima Counties. The combination of this document with the Arizona Rural Health Needs Assessment (1987) provides a comprehensive set of data which suggests the relative need for health services statewide.

It is anticipated that planners and researchers at the state, county and local level will utilize the data contained in this report in various ways to expand upon the methodology presented. It is also anticipated that various public and private entities will use these data as a basis for action designed to facilitate the improvement of health care service delivery in the state. It is crucial that solutions be developed which account for the individual characteristics of the various geographic areas and communities within Arizona.

In this way, progress can be made toward the goal of optimal health status for all Arizonans, regardless of population or geographic group.

NP=No Provider

All health status data, except for the U.S., are 1981-1985 five year averages calculated from Arizona Vital Record information.

Sociodemographic data for Pima County are a 1985 estimate based on the Pima County Council of Governments' projections and the 1980 census.

Sociodemographic data for Maricopa County are from the 1985 special census.

Sociodemographic data for the U.S., Statewide, Rural Counties and Urban Counties are from the 1980 census.

Provider data are from the Arizona Rural Health Provider Atlas (1987) by Rena Gordon, University of Arizona Rural Health Office.
